vertisers. About Tooth Pulling. An O.I City man was standing in front of a dentist's office with an auxious unhappy lock in his eyes, and two yards of flannel round his lower i.w. He cast sorrowful glancas unward to the dentist's sign, and in a hesitating sort of way placed his foot on the lower stair; then came out to the street again, as if he had forgotten something. Colonel Solon came along at this moment, and with a thoughtful interest in the man's welfare, said: "Toothsche, oh? Goiu' to have it pulled? Ever had a tooth pulled? No? Well you'd better go right up afore your courage fails you Worse thing in the world is pullic's tooth. I've been through the war, had both lungs shot away, fifteen bullets in my head, and declors run a probe through a hole in my shoulder right down through my body to my the-thought 'twould kill me. But, man n'ise, I never know what pain was 'unt I had a tooth pulled. Maybo you thick the tooth chais harrible. It is, It's awfal! But was till the dentist runs them air iren tones is your mouth, pulls the touth right down through your jawbone, and then yeaks away as if he was pelling on an old engine, and yer'il think the toothache min's no more to be compared to it than a flea bite is to a railroad accident. Yer had better go right up though, and have it right out. Don't let anything I said pare yer to back out. I merely wanted to pre-pare yer mind for it. Au' don't yer take other. Knew a man oncet, about your complexion and build, who took other and he died. It's danger eus. Jest go right up an' have it out. I'd go up with yer, and she yer stand it when he begins twistin' the bonce round. Yer won't sleep a wink to night if yer don's have it out; and maybe yer won't anyhow, for sometimes the tooth breaks the itw, it floom story rhoumasis a strikes the what's its-came perve, and the all wool Buntings at 25c; present value 311c. what-they-oall it sets in." Ja t at this memen a young man practicing on a Frote's hore in one of the upper rooms blew a long, car piero ing blest, like the yell of a man in terment, and as the last sound echeed through the had she a tooth puled now, and the dentist hasn't any more than just given the first twist either .-Come right up an' have your's yanked. Whoop! there to goes again! ' as another terrible blast from the hern came down the stairease. 'Hold on, hell on!' yelled the colonel—but he wasn't quick enough to stop the man with the sching tooth, who rushed cut of the doorway and down the street so fast that his two yards of flancel became unwound and streamed b hind him like signels of danger-while the villanous

"STARERS AND NODDERS."-To the coastality of sensuive people acthing is more irritate ing or calculated to egget der supreme contempt than for them to charce to speak to a person and have him or her stare vacantly as though they never syr you before, when it would take such a sight exertion to say "Good evot" ing," "How are you," or some similar words of recognition. This disgusting trait is manifest in many we meet, and of all the varied idiasyneracies of the human race it has the smallest grounds of exause, as politeness costs nothing. It often happens that we live in a city all our lives where we have to pass and repass people daily who are known by sight to us and who know us perfec ly well too; and yet should we, in order to show our natural sociability, presume to speak to some of them, we would be gazed at as seriously as an E-quimaux would scrutinize us were we in his dominions dressed as an European. Surely no excuse should be offered in behalf of such breaches of common politeness. There is another class of beinge only a shad; less thoughtless, but who also render themselves despie b'o, by morely raising their heads when spoken to, or who may, perhars, condere and to nod, but never open their meutes. Such people probably imagine that their conduct impares on important air to their carriage, when is reality it renders them con-

THE POWER OF A CYCLONE. - In discussing the two cyclones which visited the Bay of Bengal in October, 1876, Mr. Elliott, meteorological reporter to the government of Bengal, incidentally gives some idea of the evelonean forces which are developed by such storms .-The average "daily evaporation" registered by the Bengal instruments in October is "two inches" Too amount of heat absorbed by the converson of this amount of water daily over so large an area as the Bay of Bangalis enormous. "Roughly estimated," said Mr. Eliott, "it is equal to the continuous working power of 300,. 000 steam engines of 1 000 horse y wer," A simple colculation will show that it suffices to ra isa aloit over 45,000 cabin fant of water in 24 ho are from every quare mile of the besom of the bay, and transport it to the clouds which overstangit. When we extend the calculation from a single square mils to the grea of this whele Indian Gulf, the mindie lost in the effort to comes we the force waich, in a day's time, can lift 50 ,000 0 tons.
